

KENNET VALLEY HASH HOUSE HARRIERS

Mag No 044 - Sunday 10th October 1999 - The Bell @ West Overton

Yes. I remember Overton -
The name, because one cloudy Sun
Day morning, KVH met there
To try the downs - what ripping fun!

The mist cleared; Keith forgot the horn.
The GOM walked, all the runners came
Flying past me. What I saw
Was Overton - only the name.

I thought "we're back here quick - perhaps
Straight in the pub?" - you must be joke
Ing - back up three more bloody hills;
Jeremy is that sort of bloke.

Chaps I don't know, with muscled calves
Led the way. Behind them, mistier,
Farther and farther, puffed the Hash
Across the plains of mid-Wiltshire.

A poor pastiche of 'Adlestrop' by Edward Thomas, a poet killed in the 1st World War, who walked around and wrote extensively about Hampshire, Wiltshire and the Cotswolds.
