

COURT CIRCULAR

BUCKINGHAM PALACE

23 March: Her Majesty Queen Margaret and Prince Dave, Duke of Wanborough, today regaled their subjects with an excellent Hash run (no 134) from the Swan at Southrop. The Lord Lieutenant of Gloucestershire, Lt-Cdr Sir Michael Fisher KVHHH, was in attendance, together with the Ladies-in-Waiting Laura and Maxine, Steve the Master of the Royal Bedchamber pot, Paul the whipper-in, and Sir Jeremy Reece, as well as a large number of footmen and footwomen. Cdr Stephen Cluett-Green, the Royal Navy snowboarding champion, put his skills to good use. Lord Keith Mitchell brought up the rear as usual, attended by his son the Hon Toby Mitchell, who was attended by a severe hangover. The Royal party enjoyed clement weather, and visited the good burghers of Eastleach and divers other local beauty spots. Her Majesty cunningly led the company through a water hazard before repairing to the excellent hostelry. All were pleased to sit in the unseasonal sunshine.

Her Majesty delivered a gracious speech, and presented the ceremonial horn to Lady Laura, before being fulsomely praised by her loyal subjects.

THAT IDIOT BLAIR WANTS HIS EFFING HEAD EXAMINED SAY ARCHBISHOP

John Major's ex-mistress Dan Kiri Te Kanawa, the Welsh speaking new Archbishop of Canterbury, created a furore when she delivered her first address at the United Colours of Benetton in New Milton, Keynes yesterday.

Jabberwocky

Praising the work of the late Mikado, she said that only those gifted with second sight could understand the implications of inter-racial sheep dipping amongst under-age postmen. Why in God's name did anyone with half a saucy pan not use it for counting dancing, instead of running round half-naked and blowing peas through old-age pensioners' letter-boxes?

Pin-cushions

Warming to her task, she swallowed half a cup of Bovril before climbing up the rope suspended from the Bee-Gees and vanishing from sight. Beckham passed from the penalty box, which contained cuff-links and a kaleidoscope of wet socks, and sawed his egregious missus into ten small pieces which were distributed to the needy and starving citizens. At deep mid-off, a band of marauding Bobbie Gentry fans gave an impromptu display of catch-weight leotard sequinning, whilst the late Chris Evans sued Death for unfair dismissal. 'Only in Ushant' cried Madame Bovary: "can you find a toothpick made with periphrastic articulation b
